Profile

Capable, inquisitive and professionally minded individual seeking a career change into the web development industry.

Self-taught approach to learning the essentials within the field, including a strong focus on Javascript and React.

From an MS Access background creating in-house solutions to tasks within my previous role, I have challenged myself to significantly broaden my learning and gain proficiency in single-page application design with the ability to create and deploy Node.js API servers, among a range of other skills.

Equally motivated by the thrill of learning and teaching, I hope to contribute meaningfully to a growing team in the near future.
